

January 16, 1986

and the people who vote are voting blindly because you do not know what you're going to end up with. That's what you're doing. Again, change it in January, look at the cost. Look at the time. That's no argument. It doesn't have to be done today. It doesn't have to be done this year. It seems like this is the year to change everything and I feel kind of bad about spending so much time on this, but it is very important. In fact, it's so important we're moving too fast in my opinion. So as I say to you, if you vote no, then if the committee wants to go ahead and present us with the final structure so we can see what actually we're going to be working under because we don't know now and we won't know for when, what time, where, who, what, let's just leave it the way it is and not advance it. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT: Senator Marsh.

SENATOR MARSH: Thank you, Mr. President and members of the Legislature, I would remind all of us that this is day seven. Without permanent rules we're going to jockey around for additional days talking about rules. I am one who is ready to vote for the adoption of the permanent rules. Why was the proposal forthcoming? Do you all recall who your reference board is? Your Referencing Committee is the Executive Board. So we have worked closely day after day after day with referencing of bills, so we are the most knowledgeable group about who is having the heaviest work load of all of the members of the Legislature. You elected us to do this job. We have brought you our very best suggestions. I'm now ready to vote for the permanent adoption. I urge you to do likewise. This is day seven. How many of you will never even be able to discuss your favorite bill if we leave this question open?

PRESIDENT: Senator Hoagland.

SENATOR HOAGLAND: (Response inaudible.)

PRESIDENT: That's all the speakers then. Any closing, Senator Beutler? Anybody to close? Senator Beutler, do you wish to close at all?

SENATOR BEUTLER: No, Mr. Speaker, I think we've heard all the arguments. Thank you.